Lee Jay Berman

Lee Jay Berman brings a diverse background to his work as a mediator, trainer and executive coach. As a mediator and trainer since 1994, he has successfully mediated over 1,200 litigated matters. Mr. Berman's success as a mediator is attributed to his ability to work with business people and the lawyers at the table, and coach them as they make tough business decisions in the midst of litigated conflict. Mr. Berman is on the national panels of the American Arbitration Association (AAA) and the CPR Institute's National Panel of Distinguished Neutrals. He is a Fellow with the International Academy of Mediators and a Diplomat with the California Academy of Distinguished Neutrals.

As a charismatic and talented trainer, he is Director of the Mediating the Litigated Case program for the Straus Institute for Dispute Resolution at the Pepperdine University School of Law, on the Advisory Board of the Harvard Negotiation Insight Initiative, and he chairs the national Training Committee of the American Bar Association's Section on Dispute Resolution. Mr. Berman has trained mediators for post war Croatia, sitting judges for the Delhi High Court in India, and thousands of mediators and lawyers for the AAA, the American Bar Association, and multiple bar associations, courts, and law firms.

As an executive coach, Mr. Berman has often been retained to lead management teams, collectively and individually, through transitional periods and to maximize performance, specializing in areas of individual leadership, client relationship building, mentoring, team leadership, communication skills and conflict prevention. Mr. Berman has also conducted training programs in negotiation, conflict resolution and dealing with difficult moments for Nationwide Insurance, Zenith Insurance, LexisNexis, Accountants Inc., the Hospital Association of Southern California and many others.

Mr. Berman, based out of Los Angeles, holds an Economics degree from the University of California at Los Angeles, and lives with his wife, a music industry executive, in Marina del Rey, California.
